Gary began working for the Department of Education in August, 2007. Before becoming the Education Career Partnership coordinator, Gary had retired with over 30 years experience as a business teacher, vocational director, system curriculum director, and elementary and high school principal. As the state ECP coordinator, he plans to help lead the state ECP managers, local school systems and technical colleges through the transition year as they implement the new ECP state structure. This structure will help to provide the most successful seamless transition possible from the secondary to postsecondary schools for high school students.
